Nobel Laureate (Physics 2022) Dr. John Clauser has been axed from speaking at an upcoming International Monetary Fund (IMF) engagement due to statements he recently made about man-made climate change being "pseudoscience."

Dr. Clauser was scheduled to present a seminar on climate models to the IMF before he received an email out of the blue from Pablo Moreno, director of the IMF's Independent Evaluation Office, explaining that Dr. Clauser's July 25 Zoom talk had been summarily and immediately cancelled – though the word used in the email was "postponed."

"There is no real climate crisis," Dr. Clauser had previously declared before getting canned from the IMF event. "Climate science has metastasized into massive shock-journalistic pseudoscience."

Dr. Clauser had also criticized the awarding of a 2021 Nobel Prize for work that was done developing computer models predicting global warming. Dr. Clauser had also told fake president Joe Biden directly on at least one occasion that Biden's climate policies are disastrous and not at all based on science.

(Related: Dr. Clauser is very outspoken about man-made global warming, which he says is a total hoax.)

Dr. Clauser's climate models include consideration for visible light reflected by cumulus clouds, which is routinely ignored by climate fanatics

The vast majority of accepted climate "science" completely ignores the visible light that cumulus cloud cover reflects. Cumulus clouds, by the way, cover, on average, about half of the Earth.

Dr. Clauser's climate models deviate from the establishment's climate models in that he takes this visible light into consideration, which is important because cumulus cloud cover exerts "a very powerful, dominant thermostatic control of the Earth's temperature," to quote the Watts Up With That? climate blog.

"Key processes are exaggerated and misunderstood by approximately 200 times," Dr. Clauser stated at the recent Korea Quantum Conference, adding once again that he does not "believe there is a climate crisis."

Last month, the CO2 Coalition made Dr. Clauser a member of its board. The CO2 Coalition, by the way, argues that carbon dioxide emissions from humans and human activity are good for the planet because they contribute to a "greening" effect, meaning more plant life and more abundance and beauty.

The climate fanatics hate CO2 for some reason. They also hate nitrogen and other natural elements that plants, animals, and humans require in order to live. In their fairy tale imaginations, ridding the planet of CO2, nitrogen, and all other natural gases will help to "cool" the planet and stop the polar ice caps from melting.

Back in the 1970s, Dr. Clauser demonstrated "quantum entanglement," which allows particles such as photons to interact at great distances at communication levels that seemingly exceed the speed of light.

"The popular narrative about climate change reflects a dangerous corruption of science that threatens the world's economy and the well-being of billions of people," Dr. Clauser warns.

"Misguided climate science has metastasized into massive shock-journalistic pseudoscience."

"In turn, the pseudoscience has become a scapegoat for a wide variety of other unrelated ills. It has been promoted and extended by similarly misguided business marketing agents, politicians, journalists, government agencies, and environmentalists. In my opinion, there is no real climate crisis. There is, however, a very real problem with providing a decent standard of living to the world's large population and an associated energy crisis. The latter is being unnecessarily exacerbated by what, in my opinion, is incorrect climate science."

In the comments, someone joked that Dr. Clauser might want to reiterate that he is not depressed and does not possess any dirt on two-time failed presidential wannabe Hillary Clinton, the insinuation being that his climate skepticism could put him in the crosshairs of some very dangerous and powerful people.
